B: Read these passages and answer the questions that follow each.

Probably no quality is more pertinent and pervasive among successful leaders than the quality of optimism. To lead successfully, one must believe that his or her leadership will make a difference. No matter how dark and dismal the journey, the leader must be able to see a light at the end of the tunnel.

Harlan Cleveland, who served successfully in many leadership roles, lays particular stress on this quality of leadership." Prophecies of doom," he reminds us, "do not in fact move people in action." Indeed they are more likely to have the reverse effect. In order to be happy, one must believe in the possibility of happiness, the great Russian writer, Tolstoy once emphasized the same holds true for leadership. In order to exercise leadership, one must believe in its possibilities.

26. In the first paragraph, "to see a light at the end of tunnel" symbolizes.....

- a. leadership b. leader c. optimism d. journey

27. In paragraph 2, "prophecies of doom" means.....

- a. avoidance of pessimism b. believing in the possibilities of happiness
c. being powerful to move people in action d. prediction of inevitable doom

28. The best title for this passage would be.....

- a. successful leaders b. leadership qualities
c. leadership roles d. people in action

29. One of the qualities that one may find in most successful leaders is.....

- a. being able to exercise power b. belief in doom
c. optimism d. pessimism

30. In line 5, 'they' refers to.....

- a. people b. actions
c. prophecies of doom d. qualities of leadership
